

Darkest of Times Part 2

4 February 2020

INTRO

HARRY

Hello again, {FIRST_NAME}. We're seeing another surge in Calamity activity, and once again, we're finding Foundables that have ties to both Dumbledore and Voldemort. We need to figure out who the Calamity is actually focused on.

If the Calamity is manifesting things related to Voldemort, then we may not have a Threat level high enough to define what we're up against.

BRILLIANT PENSIVE

HARRY

This was Dumbledore's personal Pensieve. While I used it with him to experience memories of Tom Riddle's past, I think it's safe to say that this Foundable is far more connected to Dumbledore than Voldemort.

GRIFFIN STATUE

HARRY

That statue guards the entrance to the Headmaster's office at Hogwarts. I always found it a bit intimidating, but I've never been happier to see it. This Foundable is one hundred percent Dumbledore-related.

DELUMINATOR

HARRY

Dumbledore invented the Deluminator, so I think we can safely say that this Foundable is not related to Voldemort.

SHERBET LEMON

HARRY

Dumbledore loved Sherbet Lemons, and I have a hard time imagining Voldemort enjoying a Muggle sweet. That there's a Sherbet Lemon Foundable is a great sign the Calamity is focusing on Dumbledore.

MEMORY VIALS

HARRY

These vials definitely belonged to Dumbledore. He stored memories related to Tom Riddle in them, but they were memories from the time before he became Voldemort, and were used to fight him...

YOUNG DUMBLEDORE

HARRY

Dumbledore once showed me his memory of meeting a young Tom Riddle, and he was wearing a purple suit. Maybe it's wishful thinking, but this Foundable feels more "Dumbledore" than "Voldemort" to me.

END

HARRY

The lesson I'm learning is to try to focus on what we're actually seeing from the Calamity, and not what we fear it could become.