

Feared Adversaries

14 July 2021

Adversary Event

INTRO

CONSTANCE

Hermione, we have a bit of a situation on our hands. SOS Task Force members are reporting an unprecedented surge of every Adversary we've faced so far.

HERMIONE

When we detained Gareth Greengrass under suspicion of working with The Unforgivable, I had hoped that would be the end of Adversaries. After all, Harry said the memories he received all belonged to the same perpetrator and they align with what we've learned about Gareth's life.

CONSTANCE

But the attacks aren't only continuing, they're getting worse. Does that mean Gareth isn't the one responsible?

HERMIONE

Possibly, but it's more likely that he can create Adversary surges even without a wand. Either way, we should tread carefully. Anyone who could bring Darkness like this into the world must be capable of powerful magic.

END

HERMIONE

I asked Gareth Greengrass about his role in these Adversary attacks, but he's still feigning innocence.

HARRY

While you were talking with Gareth, did you mention that I've been receiving bits and pieces of his memories in my dreams?

HERMIONE

No, why?

HARRY

For possibly the first time since Adversary attacks began, my dreams following the surge were normal. No memories leaked through. I thought perhaps you had told him and he'd used something similar to Occlumency to guard his mind.

HERMIONE

The most likely answer is that he caught on himself when it became clear we were suspicious of him. If that's not the case, then, well... That raises all sorts of new questions, doesn't it?
